

Triggerguard, wax cast iron steel..... #TG-TN-1-I

A simple 'guard with an open bow, the original was hand forged from only two iron straps. It is very typical of those used on classic Tennessee rifles. It will accommodate the ubiquitous double set trigger. This very simple triggerguard would be an excellent choice for a poor boy style rifle made with no entry pipe or buttplate.

#TG-TN-1-I triggerguard, wax cast steel only $21.99

©2012, Track of the Wolf, Inc.

shown actual size

Made in the U.S.A.

Triggerguard, wax cast iron or brass..... #TG-SM-1-B or I

This style of Southern Mountain triggerguard is often decorated with an engraved 'V' pattern at the rear junction of the grip rail and bow. Patterned from an antique example the triggerguard is shaped with a long tapered rear finial and curl at the end of the grip rail, common features with those found in Tennessee, the Carolinas, and the Virginia's. This bow is large enough for a double set trigger such as our handsome #TR-DST-6. The triggerguard has an overall length of 10-3/4".

#TG-SM-1-B triggerguard, wax cast brass only $29.99

#TG-SM-1-I triggerguard, wax cast steel only $22.99

