The UPS Store, Fed-Ex or your local shipping store is the best place to find suitable boxes for shipping a gun. Look for the "Golf Club" or "Ski" box that measure approximately 10" x 10" x 48". You will also need one box that measures 10"x 10"x 10" to slip over the end. Boxes smaller than this may not provide enough protection to your firearm during transit.

Figure 1.

Figure 1: Wrap the gun in a plastic sleeve, plastic film, or plastic garbage bags to protect it from moisture.

Never apply tape directly to wood or metal finish!

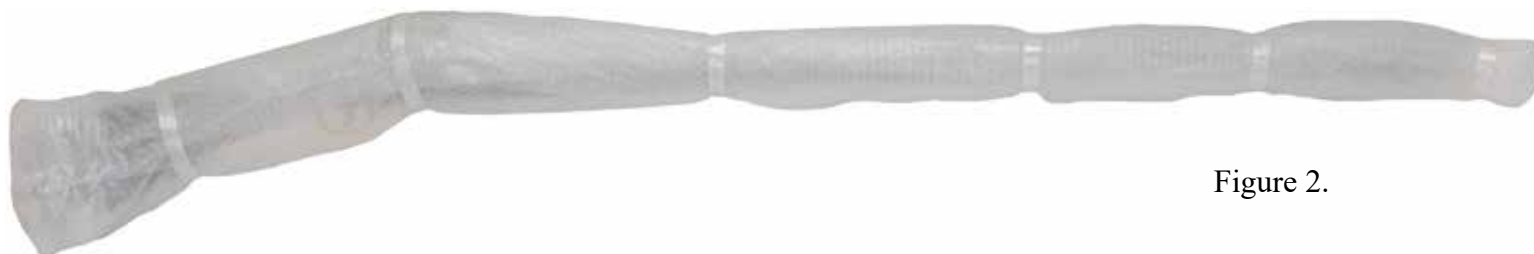

Figure 2.

Include your Free Appraisal Form as well as your name, address and a list of contents inside the box.

Figure 2: Tightly wrap your gun with several layers of bubble wrap and secure with tape. Note: Add extra padding around the hammer, as it can easily poke through a cardboard shipping box.

Figure 3: If a longer box is needed, open the flaps on a 10" x 10" x 10" box and slip it over the end of the 48" box. Tape the two together well with packing tape.

Figure 4: Tape one end of the box shut with strong packing tape. Pad the end of the box with bubble wrap to protect the butt. Foam insulation sheets cut to size works nicely. Place the firearm in the center of the box along with your contact information and fill in the space around it with bubble wrap. Pad the other end of the box with bubble wrap and tape the end shut with packing tape.

Figure 4.

If you shake the box and hear or feel something rattle, your gun is not secure!
It should fit tightly inside the box.

Make sure your name and contact information is inside the box with your item.
Simply writing a return address on the outside of the box is not sufficient.
